Few favor tax-supported transit system

Only eight per cent of the residents polled in the 10th legislative district—which includes Lansing—favor a gasoline tax increase as a principal means of financing a regional transit system in Northeastern Illinois.

Results of the mass transportation survey have been released by State Rep. Donald E. Arnell of Chicago Heights and State Rep. Thomas H. Miller of South Holland.

Miller and Arnell distributed the questionnaires throughout the district in October in an attempt to poll residents on their preferences in creating and funding a regional system and evaluating current service.

"The response indicated overwhelmingly that the people of our district don't want auto-related taxes or utility taxes as a means of financing mass transit, and this affirms our position throughout the long struggle in which we've been trying to solve the RTA controversy," the respresentatives said in a joint statement.

"Walker and the Daley Democrats loaded the legislation with a five per cent utility tax, a gas tax and a host of other schemes that would have poured a surplus-laden $345 million a year into the system, largely at the expense of the people who wouldn't benefit from an RTA," Arnell said.

He noted that less than one per cent of the persons polled in the survey favored the utility tax, and only eight per cent favor the gas tax hike.

"It's pretty clear from the survey results," Miller said, "that people in the 10th district are opposed to a tax increase, want assurances of adequate representation, and seek to protect against an erosion of tax revenues raised in the suburban area for mass transit needs. And that's quite a contrast from the Governor's plan which gives the RTA unlimited taxing powers on motor vehicles."

He noted, "The current Democratic proposal and a so-called compromise plan also excludes referendum provisions and provides no protection to transit tax revenues in suburban Cook County."

"The survey revealed," they said, "that allocation of one-half cent of the state sales tax in the six-county region and/ or state lottery funds were preferred by 80 per cent of those returning the questionnaires."

Those sources were the principal funding under a Republican sponsored RTA plan derailed by Gov. Daniel Walker and Chicago Mayor Richard Daley late in the spring session.

In regard to the make-up of an RTA board, 43 per cent of the survey respondents said they preferred that representation be evenly divided between Chicago and the suburban area, regardless of population or transit revenues; 19 per cent said representation on the board should be proportional according to population; and 13 per cent favored representation according to how much revenue came from Chicago and the suburbs.

Those polled were evenly divided over the question of whether or not they would use mass transit if service was improved, and 55 per cent indicated fare reductions would have no bearing on their use of the system.

Seven per cent of those polled rated present commuter railroad service excellent; 32 per cent said it's good; 26 per cent, fair; and 15 per cent rated it poor.

Only two per cent of the respondents rated current bus line service excellent; 16 per cent said it's good; 28 per cent, fair, and 30 per cent rated it poor.

Some 24 per cent of the respondents indicated they used public transportation daily, 9 per cent frequently, 36 per cent seldom, and 23 per cent never.

Of specific proposals for priority improvements, about 42 per cent called for additional bus routes, 36 per cent urged increased frequency on bus routes, 24 per cent favored increased frequency of commuter rails, 16 per cent called for better equipment on commuter lines, and 19 per cent said better buses are needed.

The lottery provisoon has since been deleted in the new legislation under consideration in special session, but the sales tax reduction statewide with provision for re-imposing it in the six-county region remains as the basic funding source and would produce about $100 million a year.

Miller and Arnell distributed 10,000 questionnaires throughout the district, and received more than a 5 per cent return, which is regarded by statisticians as a highly reliable sample.

New library gets landslide vote

In a predicted light vote Saturday, Lansing residents okayed a $900,000 referendum to build a new library. Of the more than 14,000 registered voters, only 1,539 journeyed to the polls with 1,165 supporting the referendum and 374 voicing opposition.

The vote clears the way for an upcoming bond issue, although the details of the sale have yet to be worked out. The referendum carried in all seven special precincts set up for the library vote by more than a 3-1 margin.

In precinct one: (Residents living north of the Kingery to the Little Calumet River, Indiana State line to the western boundary of the village) for 127; against 45. Precinct two: (Residents living south of the Kingery to Lansing Thornton Rd., west side of School St. to western boundary of the village) for 148, against 31. Precinct three: (Residents living south of the Kingery to Ridge Rd., east side of School St. to west side of Burnham Ave.) for 127, against 38. Precinct four: (Residents living south of the Kingery to Ridge Rd., State Line on the east, east side of Burnham Ave.) for 272, against 113. Precinct five: (Residents living south of Ridge Rd., to 186th St., State Line of the east, east side of School St.) for 198; against 60. Precinct six: (Residents living south of Lansing Thornton Rd., 180th St. to north side of 186th St., west side of School St. to western boundary of the village) for 121; against 48. Precinct seven (Residents living south of 186th St. to southern boundary of the village, State Line on the East, Village limits on the West) for 172; against 39.

The precincts voted in the following locations: one-Reavis School; two-Eisenhower School; three-Lansing Library; four-Calvin Coolidge School; five-Lester Crawl School; six-Oak Glen School; seven-Nathan Hale School.

Officials have estimated that the new bi-level structure will be completed within the year, barring major finance or building difficulties. It will be located on the old Indiana School property and will house the latest audio-visual equipment, private typing booths and a large meeting room.

Lansing librarian Joanne Jensen told the SUN-JOURNAL, "I'm naturally very delighted that the referendum passed, and I'd like to thank all the civic organizations and all those who took interest in the project. I'd like to thank each one individually, but it's impossible."

The SUN-JOURNAL endorsed the referendum.

Lansing to dim Christmas lights

The spirit of Christmas may be in the air, but the spirit won't be as bright as in the past.

Due to the energy crisis, many Calumet area towns are either cutting out their Christmas decoration lights altogether, or cutting back on the normal time they would be lit.

Highland's Chamber of Commerce met Tuesday to decide what they would do about the situation, and voted to keep with the past and use the decorations with lights, but they will be cutting down the hours the lights are normally on.

Lansing's Chamber of Commerce, along with the Public Works Department, agreed to use 15 watt lights, rather than the normal 50 watts. Their decorations will be lit for the same amount of time as in the past, as they are hooked up with the street lights and can't be shut off separately.

The Dyer Chamber of Commerce also met Tuesday and decided to cut back on the hours the decorations would be on, trying to keep the electricity to a minimum.

Munster has the same situation as Lansing. Their decorations are hooked-up with the street lights and are controlled by Northern Indiana Public Service Company (NIPSCO). John Bunnell, director of public works for the town, said fortunately the lights use a very nominal amount of energy; consequently, there would be a minimum amount of electricity used.

Decorations in Griffith will be lit from 3:15 pm to 1 am , rather than 6 am. Their town is under contract with NIPSCO for a certain amount of electricity, but Gale Riggle, chairman of the Griffith Community Spirit, said they would not use their required amount of energy. He said he felt it was more important to conserve energy, than to worry about the bill.

Five new scouts for 577

Lansing Cub Scout Pack 577 inducted five new scouts into the pack at their November meeting. The new scouts include Gary Gibbs, David Koepp, Eric Mureiko, Mike Semenzin and Eric Witt. Each scout was presented a bobcat badge and wolf book.

A candlelight ceremony was conducted in honor of Tom Fernandez who graduated into Boy Scout Troop 276. Tom received the arrow of light, the highest award to be received in cub scouting. Welcoming Tom into Troop 276 were Mike Cuprak, scout leader, and patrol leader Mike Cuprak, Jr.

Also leaving Pack 577, but not in attendance at the pack meeting, is Karl Breitwiser. Karl will join Boy Scout Troop 283 in Munster, Indiana.

Project soar badges (Save Our American Resources - an ecology program), were presented to 40 cubs.

Offices opened

Cook County Assessor P.J. Cullerton has announced the opening of three more suburban offices, bringing the total number of such offices to five.

The three suburban branch offices opening this week include (1) For the Northwest suburban area, 1612 West Northwest Highway in Arlington Heights, telephone 398-3663 (2) For the West Suburban area, 4850 Butterfield Road in Hillside, telephone 449-5462 (3) For the South Suburban area, 1154 Ridge Avenue in Homewood which is being shared with the Cook County Sheriff, telephone 799-9110.

Earlier this year Cullerton's office opened two other branch offices in the suburbs to bring the services of the assessor within convenient reach of suburban taxpayers. The other two suburban offices include the north suburban office at 1619 Glenview Road in Glenview, and the southwest suburban office at 8711 South Ridgeland Avenue in Oak Lawn.

"At these new suburban branch offices, property owners will be able to obtain the same services as provided by our Department of Taxpayer Assistance in our main office at the County Building in downtown Chicago," Cullerton said.

Each suburban branch office will be equipped with an I.B.M. computer communication system allowing any property owner to inspect the assessor's records on his property immediately, Cullerton said.

"The I.N.M. computer terminals in the suburban branch offices will be tied directly into our downtown computers," Cullerton said.

"This will also give suburban property owners access to necessary records without having to make the long trip downtown," he added.

Each office will be staffed by an appraiser who will be able to make immediate field inspections on nearby properties if necessary

County seeks help in fire prevention

Though local moisture is fairly normal and adequate for this time of year, seasonally dormant and drying vegetation have created their annual potential for fires in the forest preserves. To combat this possibility, fire-fighting crews in all 12 divisions of the Cook County Forest Preserve District are now on full alert, said George W. Dunne, president of the District's board of commissioners.

"Most autumn leaves are on the ground, providing burnable material, along with rapidly drying grasses," President Dunne said. "Please, be careful with matches, pipes and cigarettes as you travel the preserves. Kill picnic fires completely with water, dirt or sand before leaving your picnic site."

Present conditions make for fire possibilities, he added. However, if the area gets an early snow cover or occasional rains, leaves at ground level will remain moist and fire danger will lessen, but there is no guarantee the usual snow and rain will come on schedule. Till snow comes, November and early December are considered among the most critical months for fire hazard.

President Dunne urged the public to call the District collect, if unable to put out small fires or if discovering a large blaze. District dispatchers are manning phones at 261-8400 (city) and 369-9420 (suburbs). Through cooperation by the public, the District hopes to avoid fire damage to sizable acreages.

"Today we recognize our preserves as renewable resources if handled correctly," President Dunne said. "The forest preserves are yours. Help District employees protect them."

She starts when the game does

7 shouts = a touchdown

By RICK KOSELKE
Sun Sports Editor

She tries to behave herself, but somehow it never seems to work. Once that whistle blows, that's it. That's when it all starts.

She sits patiently in the stands, if it's a home game. If it's an away contest, then you can see her pacing the sidelines like an enraged tigress.

A small megaphone used to adorn her outfit, but two losses this season brought that to a halt. "It was bringing the team bad luck," she says.

The woman you see (and hear) yelling her head off at Munster home games and running up and down the sidelines is Betty Friend. The wife of Munster football coach and athletic director John Friend, she's quite a character at football games.

"I've always been bad. I don't mean to be, but I can see how much time John and the other coaches have put into the game and how much it means to them and the kids."

Betty is a mature woman with three children. But when she's at a game, she's worse than the most vociferous fan.

"I desperately want Munster to win in the worst way," she explains, feeling a little sheepish about the way she yells at the games. "If someone says "well, you can't win them all," I always reply "why can't you?"

"You've got to think you can win them all. If you don't, then you'll never win any of them."

Betty Friend, a small, slim woman of, as she describes, more than 21 and less than 40, has been married to coach John Friend for 18 years. But she claims she hadn't been a super fan until her husband became football coach at Munster nine years ago.

"Living with a coach, I see all the time and effort that he puts into each game," she says, trying to explain how it is living and being a coach's wife.

As she went on, she told how coach Friend usually never comes home during football season much before 8 p.m. And then, it's only for a quick supper and into the study to watch more football films

"I don't count on John being home very much during football season. In fact, he's hardly ever home even after the season ends. It's either off to speak at clinics or watching basketball games or something else.

When asked if she minded it, she quickly shook her head in an emphatic no.

"He loves what he's doing. That's the important thing. I try to do the things around the house that need to be done so he won't have to do them."

But Mrs. Friend doesn't sit at home waiting for the Friday night games. She is currently in her fifth year cashiering for the Munster high school cafeteria. But that only takes up about four hours a day.

"I enjoy getting out of the house and seeing the players every day. It's good therapy, too. I just can't stand sitting around and doing nothing."

It is surprising that she has time to do anything, what with leading women's exercise classes once a week, doing the housework and running a mile around the house every night.

"I suppose I'm hooked on the health kick," she sheepishly admits, adding that she has too many health food books and even pulling one out of her purse to show. "But I believe in keeping in shape. That's the important thing."

She certainly is in shape, not looking at all her age, which she wouldn't reveal. Her rust-colored hair is cut in a short shag, keeping with her idea on how hair should look.

"I think a boy should keep his hair short and well-groomed. The players at Munster all have short hair, or they do after John tells them to get it cut."

But then she quickly adds that the length of one's hair doesn't necessarily pertain to one's athletic abilities. That is just what she thinks, though, and she doesn't hold anything back that she believes in.

It's at the games, though, that she really turns into a Jekyll and Hyde personality. She's so innocent-looking before the game, but when the game starts, she turns into a screaming banshee.

"I'm not being mean or anything like that," she quickly responds when asked why she screams and yells. "I can't explain why I do it. But once the game starts, then that's when I do, too."

The first time I spotted her was at the Munster-Hobart game, which Hobart won in three overtimes. There she was, yelling into her little megaphone as if she was one of the coaches.

She continually walks the sidelines at away games, often looking as if she might run on the field and take the game into her own hands.

"I asked John once if I would get a penalty if I ran onto the field and tackled one of the other players. He just coughed a little and hoped inside that I never would."

The only time she feels secure, she says, is when Munster is "about six or seven touchdowns ahead." And even then, she probably couldn't control herself.

"I know I disturb some people at the games," she says nonchalantly. "But I don't care what they think. I'm not being mean or anything like that. It's just that I get so involved."

Involved is an understatement. But it's pretty good when a wife like Betty Friend gets into her husband's job so much. It's just that some people would wish she wouldn't get so loud...I mean involved.

To Munster fans, this is a familiar sight. Betty Friend, wife of Munster coach John Friend, can't control herself when the game begins. She just gets so excited, she forgets everything else. (SUN Photo)

Hard work and a lot of hustle will be the only strong points for the TF South basketball team this year. The Rebels have only one starter back from last year, Steve Jones, and a lack of height doesn't help matters any, either. (SUN Photo)

Racing fans give Crusade of Mercy fund a boost

The Crusade of Mercy fund drive opened Oct. 4 and will close with a final report luncheon Dec. 5.

In its attempt to reach a goal of $36,800,000 this year, the Crusade will get a goodly boost from Chicago's racing fans starting Friday (Nov. 16) at Sportsman's Park.

Proceeds from six days of racing will go to the Crusade of Mercy, as did a similar six days early in the year at the Fox Valley harness meeting at Sportsman's Park.

At the middle of this week the Crusade of Mercy had already reached 57.2 per cent of its goal for the year.

"Our hope at Sportsman's Park is that the Crusade will have a great six days of racing," said Sportsman's president Charles W. (Stormy) Bidwill Jr.

"Normally the final days of the thoroughbred racing year attract good crowds. If we get a continuing break in the weather things should go well for the Crusade...right through Thanksgiving Day.

"All of our employees are here to do the best they can to see that those days are so successful for them as they can possibly be."

Charles L. Brown, president of Illinois Bell Telephone Company, is the 1973 Crusade of Mercy Chairman.

At the Dec. 5 "Dutch Treat" luncheon in the International Ballroom of the Conrad Hilton Hotel, Mr. Brown is confident the final report will show the Crusade will reach its money goal.

"With the six days allotted at Sportsman's Park we're sure to get an extra boost on our way," Brown stated.

The Crusade of Mercy contributes its funds to several hundred human-care projects in the city of Chicago and 155 surrounding suburbs.

Among the projects are such activities as: Care For the Aged; Day Care and Foster Home; family and individual counseling.

Rally fails as Vikings fall 63-61

A big 21 point third quarter brought Illiana Christian's basketball team back into contention but it was to no avail as Chicago's University High won a 63-61 contest.

It was an auspicious start for the Vikings, hoping to bounce back from last year's horrendous season. Gary Van Deel's 18 points and Doug Van Ryna's 17 were high for the now 0-1 Illiana team.

Down by six at the half way mark, Illiana came to life in the third quarter to take a 52-49 advantage. But a nine-point fourth quarter and University High's final basket in the final minute of play spelled defeat for the Vikings.

Black powder law oppressive

Under present Federal law, the purchase, possession, storage and transportation of black powder is subject to extensive regulation. The result is serious hardship for the many thousands of Americans who legitimately use black powder for everything from target shooting to the actual cannon blast necessary for the finale of Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture."

Legislation to remove the five pound limitation on commercially produced black power was passed in the Senate by a margin of 78-8 on July 13. At least four similiar bills await action in the House.

Opponents of this legislation have suggested that lifting the five pound limitation on black powder would "open doors" for terrorists and bombers.

This grim picture plays on the fears of the crime-sensitive public and obscures the real issues. Certainly, questions must be asked. But the answers must be based on fact, not emotion.

How do Americans use commercially produced black powder? Some 500,000 people are involved with the increasingly popular sport of muzzle loading, collection and shooting antique and replica firearms. Thousands gather numerous competitive target shooting events all over the country, the largest of which, at Friendship, Indiana, attracts over 15,000 participants.

Additional thousands have been drawn by the challenge of hunting with muzzle loading rifles and shotguns; so many that 39 states now permit hunting with black powder guns.

Party time for cubs

The cub scouts of Lansing Pack 247 had a Halloween party at their October pack meeting. All of the cubs and their brothers and sisters wore costumes. Prizes were awarded for the best costumes. They were: 1st place - Chris Hansen; 2nd place - Russell Bozzetti; 3rd place - Joyce Bozacki. On display at the meeting were pumpkins carved out by the cubs at their den meetings.

Other awards given out at the meeting were 1 yr. service pins: Steve Bozacki, Russell Bozzetti, John Dudzik, Mike Kaim, Glen Kubel, Walter Reilly, Dominic Rossi and Richard Theillen; 2 yr. service pins: Mike Batusic, Phil Cole, Joe Corriere, Pat Feehan, Ray Heyer, Joe Matlon and Keith thomas; 3 yr. service pins: Tim Heyer, Paul Kubel and Arthur Rossi.

Area 4-H leaders Receive Awards

The highlight of the 28th annual 4-H Leaders' Recognition Dinner conducted Nov. 6, was the presentation of the Noble Leadership Awards to Ed Hein of Crown Point and Sue Johnson of Highland.

The chests of silver flatware were sponsored by the First National Bank of Crown Point. More than 225 junior leaders vie for this award which is made each year to Lake County's top boy and girl 4-H junior leaders.

Ed has been a 4-H club member for 7 years and a junior leader for 3 years. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hein.

Sue has been a 4-H club member for 9 years and a junior leader for 5 years. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Johnson.

The Recognition Dinner, sponsored by the Lake County 4-H Club Committee, Inc., was attended by more than 150 adult and junior 4-H club leaders and county 4-H committeemen.

Cathy Jurs, 1973 president of the Junior Leader Organization, and William Hulsey, 1973 4-H achievement king, led the flag pledges. Dale Wietbruck of Lowell, vice president of the county committee, gave the invocation; and Mrs. Donald Tussey of Cedar Lake, gave the 4-H leader response. Official welcome for the evening came from Alan Kaiser, president of the Lake County 4-H Club Committee.

The program for the evening was presented by the Vocal Teens from the Merrillville High School Music Department.
